Spread-eagle Keitt harangued the House to day for an hour in favor of acquiring Cuba. "peacefully if we can, forcibly if we must." "My voice is still for war," said Keitt, with a terrific emphasis on the final word. His speech was in the highest style of Negro eloquence, and a traveler just reformed from Africs, who happened to be in the gallery, remarked that his arguments were nearly identical with those of a famous Ashantee orater, whom he had heard at a grand palver at Coomassie, urging the chiefs to invade and conquer a neighboring country. It is confidently asserted, on Democratic gutherity, that great dissension exists in the party here on the subject of Cuba.

NEW LEAP FROM A WELL ENOWN-RISTORY

We recently published a letter in which

We recently published a letter in which Harlow Case, the defaulting Collector of Sandusky, amounced the decease of the unhappy woman who had accompanied his flight, and implored the forgiveness of her husband. Under the title we have given above, a missionary correspondent of the Boston Watchman and Reflector describes an interview with the millioning the control of the control the guilty pair, which took place shortly be-fore death hurried away the mother and the child whom she had made the companion of her wanderings. The subject is a painful-one, but the writer describes so feelingly and ruthfully the self-inflicted misery of Case

And only man is via.

Ouriously enough, I was just repeating this stanza, when my new acquaintance called for me. I had mel bim while on a business visit to Coylon, as a countryman of mine, and was pleased with the opportunity that afforded me more intimate nersonal knowledge.

pleased with the opportunity that afforded me a more intimate personal knowledge.

I thought myself fortunate is falling in with so agreeable a gentieman, and considered his face and manners peculiarly refined. On our second meeting I noticed a singular restleseness of the handsome dark eyes, an irritable bitterness of the lips, and a disposition to be consantly on the move, shown in the tapping of a light bamboo cane, or the motion of foot or hand.

These things, however, did not strike me as singular at the time, but coupled with what I afterwards learned, were certain evidence that the man felt already the gnawings of the worm that never dies.

Some forceanon we left the little seaport town where I was adjourning, and rode a short distance into the saterior of the gorgeous Island. Most glorious were the surroundings on every hand. With a prodigality quite undreamed of by the inhabitants of a colder clime, nature had showered her most exquisite floral gifts everywhere. Trees loaded with sweetsmelling flowers, their Intense colors vicing with the foliage of richer green, from out of which they smiled; tall cactus plants, will erimon, goblet-shaped blossoms; lillies, gorgeous in the queenly unfolding of form and color—everything rich, lavish and wonderful met our eyes, feasted to fullness with this.

"Yes, sir, mamma has been sick a long time," replied she, dropping her eyes, while her lips trembled.

"Did you come from America?" she asked timidly, after a long silones.

"Yes, my dear. Do you know anything of that country?" I returned, growing more ami more pleased with her expressive face.

"Only that mamma came from there, and I think," she added, hesitatingly, "that I did. But Mr. C. will inver let me talk about it."

"Are you then not the little daughter of Mr. G." I saked, somewhat astonished.

"I am my mother's daughter," answered the child, with a grave dignity in one so young—and a minute after she arose and quietly left the room.

I sat watching her white robes flitting through the long shady walk opposite my window, and knew that the child brooded over some dark sorrow, for her eyes were filled with tears.

Why was it, I questioned myself, that painful thoughts took possession of me as I est there? I is seeined as if I were sojourning in an enchanted spot, and thus some horror was suddenly to break upon me.

At my side, marriy covering a beautiful table of letter-wood, were several costly giftbooks. I took them upon me. O TETES - OY STEES - OYSTEES.

I answered an affirmative.

Did you ever know a gentleman there is name—of—H. E. F——?" "I knew him, sir," I said steraly, looking the man steadily in the face, "and I knew him also a ruined, heart-broken man."
With an ejaculation of anguish he put his handkerchief te his eyes. It would have seemed hypocritical, but the suffering on his face was unmistakable, handkerchier to his eyes. It would have seemed hypocritical, but the suffering on his face was unmitstable.

"Perhaps you have suspected then"—he began in a quivering voice.

Not calmiy, but with the words of an accuser, I told him what I had seen, and thought, and felt.

"Sir," said be, in tones which I shall never forget. "If I have sinced, Ged in Heaven knows I have suffered; and if in F.'s bereavment he his cursed me, that curse is fearfully fulfilled! Poor Mary is dying—has been dying for months and I have known it. It has been for me to see the falling siep—the dimming eye; it is for me, now, to see the terrible struggles of her nearly woru-out frame; it is for me to listen to her language of remorae, that sometimes almost drives me mad. Yes, mad—mad—mad," he said, in freezy, rising and crossing the floor with long, hasty strides. Then burying his face in his bands, he exclaimed, "Too inte—too labe—I have repenied." "Up the cool, wide, matted stairs, he led me, into a chamber oriental in its beautiful faroishing, its chaste magnifeence.
There half-reclining in a wide, easy chair—a costly shawl of face thrown over her attendated shoulders; the rich dressing-gown, clinging, and hollowed to the ravages sickness had made—sat one whose great beauty, and once gentle gift, had made the light and loviness of a sacred home.
